Dear Applicant,

Patient and Public Involvement and Engagement (PPIE) Coordinator

Thank you for your interest in the PPIE Coordinator role at Alström Syndrome UK and Breaking Down Barriers. This exciting new role reflects our ambition to further develop the support we offer to individuals and families living with rare and genetic conditions, patient organisations, support groups and community networks.

If you understand the importance of including diverse voices and experiences in research and service developments, then we want to hear from you. Learning from people with lived experiences and addressing health inequalities is central to our work.

Knowledge of the barriers experienced by people from diverse, marginalised and underserved communities, previous experience of supporting people living with rare/genetic conditions and developing and facilitating PPIE groups will be a distinctive advantage. A willingness to work flexibly from home and to travel will be essential.

Most importantly, if you can demonstrate cultural humility, are compassionate and determined and want to make a positive impact on people's lives we would encourage you to apply.

Kindest Regards

Kerry Leeson-Beevers
Chief Executive Officer
Alström Syndrome UK & Breaking Down Barriers

Thank you for your support
